is a current Chartered Member of the Royal Institute of British Architects

The RIBA's Charter bestows the status of 'Chartered Architect' on Chartered Members only. Practising members using this title must also be registered wherever registration is a requirement under the law in their country. Accordingly, a practicing 'Chartered Architect' in the UK must be both a Chartered Member of the RIBA and registered at the ARB.

Members must abide by the Constitution and the Code of Professional Conduct (the Code). The Code sets out and explains the standards of professional conduct and practice which the Royal Institute of British Architects (RIBA or the Institute) requires of all its Members, in accordance with its stated purpose for '...the advancement of Architecture and the promotion of the acquirement of the knowledge of the Arts and Sciences connected therewith.'

The Code applies to all Members in all countries, whether they are working in traditional architectural practice or have followed a different career path, such as in a multidisciplinary organization, academia or a construction company.
